"Other Woman" Disappears from Ship; Sought Dead or Alive.
WILL SEARCH RIVER
Brother Explains Relations of Executive to Dorothy Millette.
By The Associated Press
LOS ANGELES, Calif., Sept. 10.—Newspaper assertions that Paul Bern threatened his beautiful wife, Jean Harlow, the night before he killed himself, complicated the mystery of his suicide today as authorities searched for the "other woman"—dead or alive.
Reports of a possible quarrel with Miss Harlow came in a story by the Los Angeles Examiner that the movie executive threatened the actress with death last Sunday night. His body was found in his home Monday.
From various sources close to the actress, the newspaper said, "It was declared that Bern flew into a rage at Miss Harlow and screamed: 'Get out and let me alone. If you don't, I'll kill you!'"
The report was unverified from other sources and contradicted testimony given at the inquest, when the Bern buder testified the couple parted Sunday night "the best of friends."
Further mystery came in the reported disappearance of Miss Dorothy Millette, once known as "Mrs. Paul Bern," from a Sacramento river steamer while enroute to Los Angeles.

JAPS PROTEST TOKYO PHOTOS

Pictures Taken by New York Branch Cause of Diplomatic Row.
By The Associated Press
TOKYO, Sept. 10.—The storm of protest which has developed during the last two days over the photographing of a number of Japanese business and industrial buildings by the National City Bank of New York assumed a more serious aspect today and led to diplomatic action.
Delegations from several Japanese patriotic societies visited the branch of the bank at Osaka and attempted to intimidate its Japanese employees. Osaka newspapers came out with full pages devoted to protest against the photographing and printed a number of other reports to hint the United States was making other preparations for possible war.
Ambassador Joseph C. Grew immediately arranged for an interview with the Japanese foreign minister, Count Uchida, and called on him at the foreign office this afternoon.
The newspaper charges, which included a long list of American activities, such as the presence of the American fleet in the Pacific, an alleged cruise of three airplanes across the Kurile islands, and establishment of new American air bases on the Aleutian islands, also were broadcast over the semi-official radio station at Osaka.
The charge that the bank's photographs might get into the hands of the United States was department for use in mapping raids for air bombing raids was reiterated.
The newspaper Kokumin Shimun, which led the criticism, said there were many "manifestations of serious intentions of America against Japan."

ENTRIES POUR IN FOR 82ND COUNTY FAIR

Expect All Display Space To Be Taken When Registration Closes Tonight.

GATES TO OPEN TUESDAY

Farm Boys and Girls To Occupy Prominent Place in Annual Exposition.

Registration headquarters of the Marion county fair board in the offices of the board of elections hummed with activity today as dozens of prospective exhibitors filed their entries for the county's eighty-second fair which will begin Tuesday.
Registrations will be received until 8 tonight. By that time, it is expected that all available buildings and display space on the fair grounds will be assigned.
Numerous persons had filed their entries with the board before the final rush began this morning. Progressive grange had entered its exhibit, and individuals had entered everything from fine needlework to prize cattle.
Direct Junior Fair
Encouraged by the fair board, the junior fair this year will make a stronger bid for prominence than ever before. The junior fair is in charge of Levi H. Lukens, vocational agriculture teacher at Walden, who is in charge of vocational exhibits, and Glen Poe, vocational agriculture teacher at Pleasant township school, who is directing preparation for 4-H club exhibits.
Exhibits of girls in the junior fair will be in two divisions, cooking and sewing, with approximately 300 entries booked for each division. Cakes, bread and cookies will be shown in the cooking division, and sewing exhibits will include gifts and clothing. In certain classes of the sewing division for older girls, the entrants will show dresses they have made, together with hats and other apparel they have chosen to be worn with these dresses.
In the stock department of the boys' division, there will be approximately 125 pigs, 30 lambs and 10 steer entries, fair officials estimated. Vocational students will show the result of their project work during the last school term, including pigs, poultry, eggs and sheep. In the crop department, corn, wheat, oats and vegetable projects will be shown.
Shop Work To Be Shown
Through a new plan of entering shop exhibits, the handicraft produced last year in each school will be shown as a school exhibit, not as individual entries. This will limit the exhibits to eight, excluding the shop classes in Marion city schools.
As previously announced, the board is offering a total of $5,000 in premiums, including $2,000 in race prizes. Exhibit entries will be limited to residents of Marion and adjoining counties.
The three-day harness race program and horse show plying contests will be features of the afternoon programs, interspersed with aerial acts in front of the grand stand. Night fair features will include the preliminary, semi-final and final matches of a county-wide tug-of-war contest, aerial acts, and other entertainment to be climaxed by the presentation of a circus, composed entirely of Marion athletes, Friday night. This circus will be in charge of J. L. Meredith, former physical director at the fair. An illuminated drill by a group of Marion girls also is scheduled for Friday night.
Exhibits Entered
Entries on file with the fair board yesterday afternoon included the following: Progressive grange; Richard Gilmore of 133 South High street, painting; Carl Haberman of Marion R. F. D. SEARCH FOR ROBINS CENTERS IN CHICAGO

Two Persons Report Seeing Missing Prohibition Leader There Thursday.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Federal prohibition agents attempting to solve the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Raymond Robins concentrated their efforts on determining whether the 36-year-old friend of President Hoover had been in Chicago Thursday. They had checked one report from Mrs. W. Requa Bryant that she had seen Robins there, but said nothing publicly as to their conclusions.
Special agents of the prohibition bureau also attempted to confirm the statement by W. W. Haupt, Chicago automobile dealer, who insisted he saw the missing colonel in that city Thursday afternoon. Prohibition agents entered the case after suggesting that Robins might have been down away with by bootleggers because of activities against them.
Publicity Kept
Amos W. W. Woodcock, prohibition director, and much of his hope of finding Robins rested upon publicity given the case.
"Unless Colonel Robins has been kidnapped or done away with, we have every right to expect that he should have something shortly," Woodcock told newspapermen.
Nothing has been heard from Florida agents, Woodcock said, to lead to the belief held by Mrs. Robins that her husband might have been spirited away of a lair by liquor law violators.
One Theory Abandoned
A theory that Robins had dropped out of sight on a "honeymoon" hunt—advanced when he failed to keep an appointment with President Hoover last Tuesday—was abandoned today by prohibition officials during the activities of 100 special agents working on the case.
They felt the passage of a full week and the widespread publicity given Robins' unexplained absence eliminated such a solution.
In Brooksville, Florida, home of Colonel Robins, friends refused to believe he had been slain. S. D. Cogger, president of the First National bank, and James Whitehurst, attorney, contended rather that Robins probably had been taken suddenly in or kidnapped and held for ransom.
Failure To Fill Ohio Engagement Recalled
By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 10.—The search for Col. Raymond Robins aroused more than casual interest in Cleveland today as an incident that occurred here three years ago was recalled.
Robins was looked to speak before 1,000 teachers attending the Northeast Ohio Teachers association convention. Copies of his address had been supplied to local newspapers, one of which featured his remarks in an edition which went to press about the time he was scheduled to speak.
But that time—36 years ago—was not. A substitute speaker held the audience with an impromptu address and, amidst of the teachers' convention, Col. Robins was never seen again.

SEARCH RIVER BED FOR BOAT BLAST VICTIMS

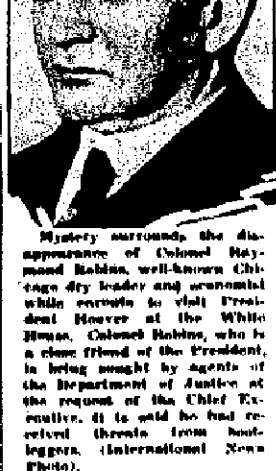

Divers Recover One Body; Ferry Explosion Death Toll Reaches 39.

11 MEN STILL MISSING

No Explanation Offered for Explosion; Three Investigations Seek Cause.

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Wives and children of the missing watched sadly from the shore today as divers searched the floor of the East river for victims of the explosion of the labor ferry "Observation."
By mid-morning another body had been found on the muddy river bottom and another injured died in a hospital. Police figures at that time read: Dead 39, missing 11, injured 63.
Held Captain As Witness
The district attorney of the Bronx announced today he would hold Alexander Forsythe, captain of the Observation, as a material witness of the explosion.
Details of the disaster will be told before a grand jury next Tuesday morning, the prosecutor said. Forsythe, now a patient in Fordham hospital, is expected to appear. Physicians said his injuries are not serious.
The 44-year-old Observation blew up yesterday morning as it left the ferry house at 135th street with iron workers employed to build prison cells in the new penitentiary on Riker's island.
There was no explanation of the explosion, but four investigations hunted its cause today.
"It might have been dynamite for all we know about it yet," said John Cross, supervising inspector of the U. S. bureau of navigation and planning inspection. This bureau opened its investigation today, examining survivors.
United States District Attorney, Meadell, conducting a separate investigation, subpoenaed for questioning the inspectors who examined the boilers of the Observation last April and who reported them satisfactory.
A third inquiry was being conducted jointly by police and fire departments, and a fourth was in charge of District Attorney McLaughlin of the Bronx.
The suddenness of yesterday's tragedy was remarked not only by the survivors but by witnesses ashore and aboard craft that dotted the river.
From shore, it was a terrific explosion, a huge cloud of smoke, objects hurled through the air—parts of the steamer, the engine boiler which described an arc and struck the water with a great hissing sound, and human bodies—and then the waters closing over the steamer.

CITY RECEIVES C.M.&B. ORDER

Officials Say They're Ready To Confer on Traction Abandonment.

Neither city nor C. M. & B. Electric Co. officials had taken any steps today toward an agreement concerning the disposition of the company's interurban tracks inside the city limits, an agreement that must be reached before the company can abandon its Marion-Bucyrus line.
Copies of the order issued yesterday by the state utilities commission, giving the company permission to abandon the line conditioned on its agreement with the city to seal or remove the tracks to the corporation limits, were received this morning by electric company officials. City Solicitor Carter M. Patton and City Solicitor Charles F. Schaefer of Bucyrus.
City officials this morning said they were ready at any time to confer with company representatives in an effort to reach an agreement as to what shall be done with the company's tracks from the interurban station on West Center street in the north corporation line. Electric company officials said no arrangements for a conference have been made.
The utility commission's order provides that the company can abandon service on its line when it seals or removes the tracks to the satisfaction of the city and gives 10 days' notice to the public.

ENROLLMENT INCREASE SEEN AS PROBLEM

Large Registrations Forecast for Junior and Senior High Schools.

OVERCROWDING EXPECTED

Fewer Teachers, Shorter Term Add Difficulties to Session Opening Monday.

With the expectation of enlarged junior and senior high school enrollments and faced with the problem of starting under a handicap of fewer teachers and operating for a shorter term because of lack of funds, the Marion public schools will open Monday morning.
One hundred and ninety-one teachers were hired this year, Hurl. George A. Bowman announced today.
From indications in advance of registration Monday morning, school officials are preparing for the largest senior high school enrollment in Marion's history, and for greatly increased enrollment in the junior high schools. Principals in the junior high schools reported that more pupils from other cities have registered this week than in any recent year. School authorities are unable to account for this factor in the enrollment.
The present indication is that the elementary enrollment will drop slightly, Mr. Bowman said.
Members of Teachers' Guild
A check of final assignments of teachers to buildings, announcement of which made public today, shows that this year there will be 13 fewer teachers employed. Two hundred and four were on last year's payroll. Two hundred and twenty-one teachers were hired this year, said to fill a vacancy and the other to take care of an enlarged elementary corps enrollment. They are: Elizabeth L. Drumm of Columbus, who will teach at the Thomas A. Edison Junior High school and J. Marya Alps of Plain City, Ind., who will teach at Harding High school.
In announcing the assignment of teachers and plans for the opening of school, Mr. Bowman stressed the importance of parents having their children in school Monday morning.
"The importance of starting to school the first day and getting details of assignments taken care of cannot be over-emphasized," he said. "The first week or two of school determines the success or failure of many students," he added.
To relieve the congestion which has prevailed at Harding High school for several years, and which will be increased this year, a fourth grade has been added to the Thomas A. Edison school. Pupils who completed their ninth grade work at the school last year will continue in the tenth grade at the same school, to avoid any confusion of shifting pupils and districts.
Overlook for Classrooms
Classrooms will be filled beyond maximum capacity at the high school. The maximum capacity of the high school is 20 pupils. This year an extra 20 pupils will be added to the room. This congestion probably will be taken care of by portable desks.
In the junior high school, several classes as high as 40 pupils will be seated in two classrooms. The crowded classes are being held in a junior high school in from 20 to 30 pupils.
Fewer teachers with increased enrollment of the elementary schools, Mr. Bowman said. A great many more will have to be added to the staff. Mr. Bowman pointed out that the city is not in a position to add more teachers at this time. He said that the city is not in a position to add more teachers at this time. He said that the city is not in a position to add more teachers at this time.

Prospects Bright for Strong Eleven at Ohio State; Line Will Be Problem

By the Staff from
For the last decade followers of Ohio State university have been looking forward to a Western conference football championship. They're still looking. This year more intently than ever. Ohio State should have a good football team during the 1932 season. Only three players on the team which finished second in the Big Ten in 1931 have been graduated. So far ineligibility hasn't caused any serious losses. The crop of sophomores seems to contain many fine players.

The line, when considered alone, are highly encouraging. But when the line is compared with the rest of the team, the prospects are less bright. The line has a good chance at the 1932, but so have Northwestern, Michigan, Purdue, and perhaps Minnesota and Indiana.

The Backs, each, Sam Williams, has far better material with which to build a backfield than a year ago. Stunt Holcomb, the 1931 captain and halfback, will be gone. But the real backfield spark, Carl Cramer, again will be calling signals and making long runs.

Low Hinchman, the captain-elect, and Bill Carroll are good running and blocking backs. Mike Yuchinich is a veteran fullback but there is a possibility he may be moved up to the forward wall.

There are a lot of good backfield prospects returning from the 1931 team and a promising group from the erstwhile Frosh. The problem of building a good line rests upon the development of good ends and tackles. The positions in the center of the line are practically filled by center Dick Smith and guards Marry Varner and Joe Gehus.

Bob Haudrich and Bill Bell, two of the best tackles of last season, will have to be replaced. That's going to be tough, especially since Haudrich was a deadly place-kicker.

All of last year's end will return but since the flanks were among Williamson's big problems last season, he will probably be a question of another good end or two. The veteran ends are Julius Fendall, Sidney Gilman, Fred Conrad and Bert Nauman. If Williamson can reach into sophomore class and pull out three or four first class graders, his problem may be solved.

SENATORS THREATEN ATHLETICS IN BATTLE FOR SECOND PLACE

Waker Johnson's Team Wins 20 Games in 24 Starts; Leaders Coast.

By The Associated Press
While the New York Yankees and Chicago Cubs proceed leisurely to share the victories that bring them closer and closer to the major league's two championships, Waker Johnson's Washington Senators are going along at a terrific clip that may yet earn them second place in the American league.

Twenty victories in their last 24 games today had carried the Senators to within a game and a half of the Philadelphia Athletics.

This feat of Washington's has been featured by excellent pitching, but it was the Senators' bats that beat back the St. Louis Browns, 6-4, yesterday.

The Yankees, needing four victories to clinch the pennant, got absolutely nowhere, dropping two games to Detroit Tigers, 11-12, in 14 innings, and 4-1.

The Boston Red Sox overcame a six run lead and whipped the Chicago White Sox, 9-5.

The Cubs moved one game closer to the National league pennant by beating the Boston Braves, 5-2, as Lonnie Warneke hung up his twelfth victory of the season against five defeats.

Twelve more Cub victories automatically will give Charlie Grimm's club a single in the twelfth down in the run that enabled the Phillies to trim the St. Louis Cardinals, 5-2. The New York Giants split two games with the Cincinnati Reds, dropping the first 19-4 and winning the second 11-1.

PRESBIES WILL SEEK ANOTHER CITY TITLE

Only Knights of Pythias Team Blocks Path; Teams Will Clash Monday Night.

By KARE, M. McELROY
When the Presbyterians resume play in the little world's series at Lincoln park Monday night they will be seeking their second city recreation hall championship in a row.

The only stumbling block in the path of the Sunday school league champs is the Knights of Pythias. The two teams will clash Monday night.

On past performances there would seem to be no way out of picking the winner other than handing the glory to the Presbyterians. But Marion's little world's series plays no attention to records of the past.

This was shown Thursday night at the championship battle ground when the lodgesmen walked all over the strong Gascones.

Before the start of the game it would have been possible to get all kinds of money that the K. of P. did not have a chance.

Recreation hall titles are not always determined on the relative merits of slugging and pitching. A few misplays seem to throw a victory to the other side.

This may occur Monday night, and with Schwaderer on the mound for the lodgesmen, the Sunday school boys are not likely to do any extensive knocking. Schwaderer is one of the youngsters who have moved up to a high position in the pitching ranks this season. He has something on the ball that must batter him mightily hard to figure out.

Discounting everything else, the Presbies have a two-to-one chance of winning the pennant. Double elimination makes this possible. For the club team has not been defeated in the series. The lodgesmen with one loss must win two

SLUGGING RECORDS OF LEAGUES ARE NOT IN SERIOUS DANGER

Chances Slim for Any New Marks: Fox's Smacking Homers.

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The chances for any serious record breaking by major league batters appear rather slim but a couple of slugging feats worthy of note have gone into the records this week.

The home run hitting of Jimmie Fox and Babe Ruth stand out in the performance of a rather ordinary week of hitting. Fox's two homers gave him a total of 55, and made him the third major league batter ever to go above 50 for a season. Ruth's blow was his fortieth, the eleventh season the Babe has hit that many. Only two others players have hit 40 or more in two seasons.

Paul Waner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, hit four doubles to bring his total up to 56, four short of Chuck Klein's National league record.

The rest of the batting and slugging argument went along as usual except that Dale Alexander of Boston Red Sox stepped into second place in the American league to give Fox an argument for the first time in many weeks. Fox raised his average a point to .365 while Alexander's mark through Friday was .359. Frank O'Doul of Brooklyn, National league leader, is hitting .370.

Trailing O'Doul in the National league were V. Davis, Phillies, .345; Klein, Phillies, .345; Hurst, Phillies, .342; Terry, Giants, .339; P. Waner, Pirates, .336; L. Waner, Pirates, .333; Stephenson, Cubs, .331; Traynor, Pirates, .328, and Ott, Giants, .327. Other American league leaders were Ruth, Yankees, .348; Gehrig, Yankees, .346; Vanuxem, Senators, .343; Combs, Yankees, .325; Jolley, Red Sox, .325; Fernald, Browns, .323; Cronin, Senators, .323, and Simmons, Athletics, .318.

The topmost slugging figures in the two leagues were: Ruth—Klein, 141; Fox, 137; Klein, 253; O'Doul, 200; Simmons, Athletics, 192; runs batted in—Fox and Hurst, Phillies, 152; doubles—Paul Waner, Pirates, 55; Gehrig, Tigers, 41; triples—Cronin, Senators, and Herman, Reds, 18; homers—Fox, 51; Klein, 35; stolen bases—Chapman, Yankees, 34; Klein, 20.

Lonnie Warneke of the Cubs, head of the National league flingers, won two games for a record of 21 victories and five defeats. In the American league, Johnny Allen and Vernon Gomez of the Yankees recorded one triumph apiece, making it 16 and 2 for Allen and 23 and 6 for Gomez.

BABE IS RECOVERED; WANTS TO RETURN

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Those twinges in the side which sent Babe Ruth scurrying back to New York for a medical examination have responded so quickly to treatment that the New York Yankees' mighty slugger already is fretting at his enforced idleness.

"I'm ready for the world series," the Babe said. "In fact I believe I feel well enough to be out there and playing right now."

But Mrs. Ruth vetoed that idea. "The doctor said you must have three days of absolute rest," she told the Babe, "and you are going to stay in bed if I have to call out the reserves."

Club Members Quilt To Fight Case of Woman

By The Associated Press
MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 10—An extraordinary quilt case has been adopted by Milwaukee club members as a means of raising funds to appeal to the state supreme court for the case of Mrs. Peggy Seely, who has been sentenced to jail rather than pay a $15 fine on a speeding charge.

Protesting that she termed the "case-minute" racket in district court, Mrs. Seely "wanted" to raise through several stages in circuit and municipal court, but each time she lost.

Now Mrs. Seely and other club women are working daily on a "comforter" quilt, the 14th was a County Federation of Women's Club plan to use as the grand prize of a series of quilt parties, the proceeds of which will be donated to the appeal fund.

Mrs. Seely said she would have preferred to drop the case long ago, but feels herself obligated to carry on in behalf of other motorists who might be "tricked."

"Short" Ride On Train Ends Here for Boys

Two Columbus boys became unwilling passengers on a train bound for Marion last night after they had hopped a Chesapeake & Ohio freight to carry them to the home of a friend in north Columbus.

Carl Smith, 14, the older of the two, thought the train would stop for water near the friend's home, so he and Lloyd Purdie, 11, hopped on it. When the train reached the vicinity of the friend's home, it was traveling so fast that the boys were afraid to jump, they said at police station this morning.

The train did not slacken its speed until it arrived in Marion. Here the boys jumped off, and watched their chance to get on a train bound for Columbus. A railroad detective took the boys into custody, and turned them over to police who held them last night. Parents of the boys were notified last night and were expected to arrive this morning to take the boys back to Columbus.

of State Directors
Views Voiced by Health Official at District Conference Here.

Removal of the state directors of health, welfare and education from politics was advocated by Robert C. Patterson, executive secretary of the Ohio Public Health Association in an informal conference with Marion and Logan county committee members of the Ohio Christmas Health Seal committee here yesterday.

Delaware, Hardin and Union counties were not represented at the district conference, held at the Marion City club.

Patterson expressed the opinion that more effective work could be done in these three state departments if the directors were not political appointees and were not subject to change with each administration.

Tentative plans for the annual sale of Christmas seals in Marion and Logan counties were discussed, and E. L. Brady, president of the Marion County Anti-Tuberculosis League, said Patterson also urged Marion county representatives to encourage, at the earliest possible time, the construction of a tuberculosis sanitarium in this district.

GERMANS GET REPLY TO ARMAMENTS NOTE

France Says Equality
Proposal Should Be Made to League.

By The Associated Press
PARIS, Sept. 10—The council of ministers, with President Lohin presiding, approved unanimously today the text of the French reply to Germany's aide-memoire demanding equality of armaments.

The reply, among other things, points out that the German demands call for a revision of the Versailles treaty and that such a procedure could not be taken by France and Germany, but should be referred to the League of Nations.

The reply will be delivered to the German government by the French ambassador at Berlin tomorrow.

The note was described as extremely courteous in tone, dealing separately with the points raised by Germany but emphasizing that the proper place to discuss this matter is Geneva, where Germany is a member of the League of Nations council.

The reply also takes the position that since disarmament discussions already are under way at Geneva it would be improper for France to engage in bilateral negotiations of interest to so many other countries.

Old Themes Are Timely for Modern Movies, Will Says in Studio Debate

BY WILL ROGERS

every one that sees me in my street clothes say that I excel in tramp parts. I like to play tramps. There is something about an old tramp that kinder hits me, especially a kind of a good natured one that don't take things too seriously.

Did you ever see a picture company on location? Well now that we have to carry all that sound equipment and men with it, why it looks like Barnum's Circus coming. We have a very small cast, about five. Yet I bet there is about 50 of us. It takes lots of folks to make these things, even if when you see 'em sometimes you think they ain't so hot. And the funny part about it is that a bad one takes just as much work as a good one, for we have never find any one that can tell when its going to be bad. What I mean is that we don't make 'em bad purposely. They sometimes look like we did, but we don't. We do our best all the time, and all the crew, the cameramen, the carpenters, property men, sound technicians, and dozens of other expert men in their lines, they all do good work on all of 'em, but its us actors, and writers and directors that just don't click in some of 'em.

Wise Once Rattled

Its kind of a cuckoo business, but tramps have been full for twenty years of so called smart people that were coming out here to fix the movies, and they have all gone back. There is things that look like they ought to be changed, but the wise ones can't seem able to think of anything to improve 'em. Its sort of like our Government. Its the cockeyedest run thing, we sometimes think, but darn it we keep living under it and nobody can scare up anything any different.

I don't know the older we get the more "Standard" we get. The only change we want as we grow older is a change back to the things of our early life. We don't want a lot of new ones. Just because a thing is new don't mean that its better. Now take it right here where we are right in the edge of the high Sierras. Just a short ways from Mount Whitney the highest Point in the U. S. Now away back up in these high mountains, there is no automobile road, so to get back there to fish and hunt, they have to "Pack in." They hire horses and say they have the greatest time of their lives. So where is your old automobile? There will never be a time when the old horse is not superior to any auto ever made.

Old Subjects Revived

Like the other day at the Studio they was talking about a story. Said it had to be changed a lot, that the old idea of the mortgage on the old farm was all out of date, that the villain robbing the train and hiding the money was all the hokey. They claimed that all stories had to be made modern and up to date. So I told 'em, say listen there never was a time in our lives when the foreclosing of a mortgage was as timely as it is today. It almost comes under the heading of standard equipment with most homes and farms, and so for villains being out of date, why villains are getting as thick as college degrees, and sometimes on the same fellow. No sir, there is no new situations. Wives are leaving husbands, husbands are leaving wives. Robberies where they used to take your horse, and if they was caught they got hung for it, now they take your car and if they are caught its a miracle, and they will perhaps have the inconvenience of having to go to court and explain.

Marion Man Saw County's First Fair 82 Years Ago

Reuben Messenger Will Compare 1932 Exposition with One at Scottown in 1850.

REUBEN MESSENGER, 80, of 257 North Saffner avenue, who as a seven-year-old boy attended the first Marion county fair in 1850, will be a guest of the Marion County Agricultural society this year during its eighty-second Annual agricultural exposition.

Although memories of the first fairs are dim in his mind, Mr. Messenger recalls enough about them to point out some interesting contrasts between the first and the eighty-first fair, which he attended last year.

The first fair, he remembers, was held at Scottown, now Merker, on a large farm. Several hundred persons attended to see the exhibits of stock and produce, shown in the open air, and to watch owners of fast saddle horses around the county compete for ribbons.

There was no noisy merry-go-rounds to frighten the horses and other stock, no ice cream to eat between races, nor a midway of sideshows and trick games. The parking problem then was to find enough space for the buggies, surreys and carriages.

Footraces and horseshoe pitching contests were among the contests that attracted residents from every part of the county. The fair was entirely a local proposition without imported entertainment or attractions.

This year, Mr. Messenger will witness an effort of the fair board to direct the course of the county fair back to the community celebration it used to be. More than ever in recent years the board has encouraged competition among residents of Marion and adjoining counties. There will be such contests as a tug-of-war tournament and horseshoe pitching matches. Professional stock raisers from distant parts of the state will be prevented from showing stock here as a means of stimulating keener interest and competition among local stock breeders.

ALL feature acts and entertainment this year will be given by local talent. A miniature circus will be presented Friday night by Marion acrobats, tumblers, aerial performers and other athletes under supervision of J. L. Meredith, physical director of the Y. M. C. A.

Colonel Everett Messenger, father of Reuben Messenger, was president of the fair board for several years. Mr. Messenger said. After two fairs at Scottown, the annual expositions were held in Copeland's Woods in the Ballentine addition, and later on a three-acre tract north of Kardon avenue just beyond the Erie and Big Four railroad tracks. In 1882 the society obtained 27 acres at the site of the present fair grounds, later increasing the tract to the present 47 acres.

Mr. Messenger will exhibit at the fair this year a miniature log cabin he has fashioned from odd bits of wood. The cabin is about two feet square, and is a replica of the cabin he recalls seeing when a boy.

MR. AND MRS. MESSENGER will celebrate their sixty-fifth wedding anniversary next Oct. 22, he said. They are parents of five children: Mrs. Lillie Covert of Youngstown, Everett W. Messenger of two miles east of Upper Sandusky, Mrs. Beatrice Smith of two miles north of Big Island, Mrs. Mary G. Montgomery of 257 North Saffner avenue, and Jerome G. Messenger of Fargo, N. Dak.

Mr. Messenger is unusually active for a man of 80 years. He spends several hours a day in a small woodworking shop. He easily reads newspapers without the help of spectacles, and occasionally proves that he is not growing old by leaning over and touching the floor with his finger tips without bending his knees, or jumping into the air and cracking his heels together twice before alighting. Until 11 years ago he was an active farmer.

Resembling a soda fountain mixer in operation, an electrically operated device has been invented for cleaning watches by whirling them about, enclosed in a wire container, in a chemical solution.

Riches That Do Not Fade

A SERMONETTE

By Rev. J. A. Carraker, Pastor, Forest Lawn Presbyterian Church.

PAIN, crushing stock market, unemployment, bank failures, etc. have produced a great economic depression, but are we not still rich?

We have less to live on than before, but we have just as much to live for. The real value of life are still solid and unshaken. The depression has not destroyed the value of a single true friendship. The spirit of real neighborliness has not been impaired. Honest business associates still have faith in one another. Families established in abundance find home just as sweet as ever. No one is without faith in the redeeming power of the Son of God, and the loving care of a watchful Heavenly Father is still the source of life's greatest strength and comfort in its daily forward march. The depression has not touched the truth of the Gospel. Prayer is still life's change of blessing. Neither the riches of gold nor pearls adorn the church. The divine plan for Oldsmobile's new models present many distinctive features in six and eight cylinder cars to the motoring public.

A 74 h. p. six and 84 h. p. eight offer the utmost in automobile excellence. Sound proofed, Fisher body construction, side regulator and double action hydraulic shock absorbers. Silent second gear synchro mesh silent shift transmission free wheeling with dash control longer wheel base distinctive streamline styling larger roomier bodies optional mohair or whipcord upholstery are among the attractive features of these new cars.

Henry Lautenslager, president of the Lautenslager Olds Inc. urges careful comparison with other cars for if considered solely on a basis of dollar for dollar value the 1932 Oldsmobile holds an unusually powerful appeal.

Many unusual driving conveniences are provided for Oldsmobile owners. A large size roof ventilator assures coolness and comfort in warm weather. An interior sun visor with universal joint for adjustment at any angle shields the driver's eyes from sun light or headlight glare. A non glare windshield eliminates light reflection thus adding to safety and comfort during night driving. The large steering wheel with its narrow rim is restful to the hand. The position of both the steering wheel and the front seat is adjustable to suit the requirements of the individual driver.

Given Complete Tests

To remove all factors of uncertainty from the performance of the 1932 Oldsmobile cars, Oldsmobile engineers have made full use of the testing facilities provided by General Motors in its great research laboratories and at the famous General Motors proving ground. Both materials and parts designs have been thoroughly tested by research experts. Sturdiness and durability as well as all round performance abilities have been determined and approved by Oldsmobile and proving ground engineers. And in accomplishing these results the most accurate and infallible testing equipment known to the industry has been employed. Nothing has been left to chance. Nothing has been considered proved without "proof." Nothing has been left undone to make the new Oldsmobile cars as scientifically correct as it is possible for modern science to make them.

Oldsmobile offers options in upholstery and wheel equipment which allow you to satisfy your personal preference in these important respects. Closed bodies are upholstered in either luxurious mohair or smart whipcord—at your option. You may take your choice too of either five wire or five painted wood wheels of the demountable type—no extra charge. Extra equipment which may be obtained at additional cost includes natural wood wheels, either six wire or six demountable wood wheels, with fender wells, special tire levers and folding trunk rack, chrome plated snap-on type spoke and chrome plated trim rings and white sidewall tires. For further details and prices see the Oldsmobile Price and Equipment Folder in which complete information is supplied.

Olds Third in County Sales
According to the county sales record for the first eight months of this year Oldsmobile stands third among all cars. No other car in the price field can offer as much in style, appearance and performance. These two cars are truly an achievement in automobile history. A finer faster six and a brilliant new eight.

In the used car department Mr. Lautenslager points to the many opportunities to buy right. Each car is reconditioned, tested and approved by expert mechanics and backed by the reputation of the Lautenslager Oldsmobile Inc. No fault needs to be without a car especially with some selling here as low as $250.

In the service department experts have charge of each department assuring complete satisfaction to the customer whether it be an absolute job, a car wash, a tire repair or an entire overhauling. The personal interest of Mr. Lautenslager in every customer creates a feeling of mutual respect and no doubt is largely responsible for the unqualified success of the Lautenslager Olds Inc.

OREGON ONION CROP PROVES PROFITABLE

By International News Service
PORTLAND, Ore. — Onions brought in dollars instead of tears to the eyes of growers this year and had the distinction of being one of the few farm crops to pay a profit in Oregon.

Estimates place a valuation of $700,000 in profits on the 1931 crop grown in the fertile Lake Latish country near Silverton, Ore.

More than 400 carloads of garbanzoes and hamburger steaks went out of Oregon when other large onion growing states had short crops.

With the last year's profits in mind growers have planted 15 per cent more acreage in the hope that 1932 will be another strong year for the onion boys.

Forty-Eight Years of Progress.

Although it is certain that retirement from active participation in business is a step not taken without regret or reluctance by a man who has given nearly a half-century of interest and effort to a successful enterprise, it is equally certain that there is a full measure of compensation in knowing that he retired with the best wishes and friendship of all people in the community.

That is the attitude of Marion residents toward W. L. Warner as he retires from active management of the Warner & Edwards Co. after having been outstanding in the conduct of its affairs since the founding of the business 48 years ago.

They have this cordial feeling for Mr. Warner because in all of these 48 years his policy has been one of fair dealing with the public and because his efforts have been earnestly devoted to making his business one of valuable community service and not merely an agency for private gain.

There is reason for pleasure and satisfaction for Mr. Warner in knowing that he transfers to another manager the active direction of a business so firmly established with the public that he has served. The star feels that there should be additional gratification for him in the realization that the record of 48 years of achievement and esteem and prospect of future accomplishment are due largely to his capable management.

$164 Apiece.

It is interesting, if not cheering, to realize that if every man, woman and child included in the latest census were to pay $164.31 to the federal government on the 15th day of this month the national debt would be rubbed out. The debt will stand at $307,304,700,000 on that date.

There was a time when not so much money would have been required. Good financing during the years after the war enabled the treasury to retire the debt much faster than the law provided. In June, 1920, the government was ahead almost three and one-half billion dollars in its race to keep up with expenditures.

But what it took 11 years to do has been more than undone in the 21 months since the conclusion of that period. That Sept. 15 the debt will be almost as great as it was in 1920. Since the middle of 1930 it has been increased by the sum of $4,319,400,000. Since the beginning of the present fiscal year last July 1st, it has been necessary to add $1,017,700,000 to the debt.

Such figures illustrate the snowball growth of public indebtedness, in contrast to its rocklike resistance to the melting influence of good times. It is one of the jetties provided by economic necessity that taxes are low in good times and high in bad times, with the result that the public debt constantly is piling up faster than it can be handled. No public official would dare suggest that heavy taxes be imposed during a prosperous period, in order to balance the books. A slight advantage may be gained autocratically, but when such a thing is possible a tax refund is likely to be the order of business. Consequently, units of government, both large and small, almost invariably are caught overloading with debt when a depression makes them wish for greater margins of safety.

In desperation, taxes are piled upon—always with the same result. Business is frightened, buyers are discouraged and the deficit continues to increase. It has reached $164. for the federal government, if each person were to pay his share spot cash. That's enough, but it will continue to grow larger until the people are willing to start paying it off.

The State Campaign.

Any reminder that Ohio must elect a new governor and a senator in the coming election is almost a prod to avoid duty. It has been the state's good fortune since the primary to have been as free from the scuffling of rival politicians as it is possible to be.

Ohioans have been taking what rarely seems to be more than an academic interest in the presidential campaigning, which represents the climax of national political action. It seems likely that as this interest is whetted by time it will prevent effectively anything more than the most casual attention to the contests for governor and senator.

Such a prediction is, of course, more general than specific. Among certain groups and in certain localities, nothing in the world is more important than the contest for the governorship. Elsewhere, the relationship is the most important matter to be settled. In still other places, election of a congressman and county officials is far more important than support of either of the two national parties.

But, considered as a whole, Ohio is worrying as little about politics as it can, while keeping informed reasonably well on candidates and promises. Intensely publicized already, naturally the national election has had close to a monopoly on the state's interest, which has been kept small by the deliberate intention of a population that does not take easily to spellbinding.

Politicians, however, will not let the state forget. Within a few weeks the pack will be in full cry—Hoover, Roosevelt, Garner, Curtis, White, James S. Thompson, Duffley and everyone else, down to the last little dog. From the tiger there must come decisions wise enough to preserve government for another two or four-year period, as the case may be. May heaven be at least as merciful as it has been in the past—and many things more merciful, if favor be decreed in the Ducky state.

Farmers' Debts.

Senator Borah has called for, been called for and just called away, things recently, but in no instance has he been so close home as in his appeal to business leaders for a scaling down of farm mortgages. The fact that the business leaders, wherever they are, will be afflicted with the debt war while the senator is calling them does not alter the startling of his case with farmers.

He tells them what most of them are beginning to believe—that they never will be able to get out from under their burdens of debt. Striking, he admits, is scarcely as far as provocation is concerned, but will accomplish nothing. Temporary relief can be provided by a sweeping revision of agricultural debt, but permanent relief must wait upon solution of the monetary, operations, debt and tariff problems of the world.

Thus, in one breath, speaks Borah, friend of the farmer, and Borah, canny chairman of the senate committee on international relations. There is an opportunity to make a deduction from his speech of a concept in his mind in which Americans are interested, particularly in view of the virtual failure of farm relief under the Hoover administration.

Senator Borah admits that the American farmer will not be able to better his relatively poor condition until all his brothers, in the cities and factories, are back at work. This is contrary to what seemed at one time to be the national purpose of making everything right for the farmer whether any one else was given benefits or not.

Senator Borah deplores the absence of strong promises to farmers in the two party platforms. He says he would like to know what the two candidates think about his debt reduction proposal. Somehow the idea suggests itself that it is a good sign when a farmer-helping senator is a little uncertain. It marks the end of a period when he put what he wanted—a period when Americans still fancied they could give farmers legislative bootstraps so strong that they could lift themselves independently of the rest of the nation.

Business Education.

It may be as impossible to teach business as it is to teach aptitude for writing and artistry in music. But men have been trying patiently to do the last two for years, while training in business is so new as to be difficult to obtain.

There is considerable interest in an announcement such as was made a few days ago by Princeton university, to the effect that the second summer conference course in industrial relations will be held under the industrial relations section of the university from Sept. 10 to 21 inclusive. Enrollment will be made by invitation and serious will be closed to the public.

What will be discussed? What would businessmen naturally discuss in these times? Employment stabilization, unemployment benefits, relief, pensions, insurance and dismissal compensation—ideas on these subjects will be changed. The importance of the forum may be judged by the names of companies and institutions registered for it. Among them are many of the large employers of American labor.

Within their known limitations they will be doing their best to cut through the tangle of difficulties, uncertainty and misdirection surrounding them to accomplish some progress, however slight, toward a condition in which labor and management will profit by natural support of each other. In these times it is management—and employer of labor—that is being asked to take the burden. It is striving to fit itself for the part it must play by exchanging ideas. There will come a day, it seems likely, when the processes of business education will have standardized its duties; when clearer insight into the relationship of various parts of the economic structure will have removed many of the inequalities that currently make men wonder how deliberate stupidity could have conceived and wrought a worse mess.

Comment of the Press

HELP CLOSE TO HOME.

Although financial interests and realtors are fully aware of the implications of the Home Loan Bank, it is likely that the public at large is slow in grasping what has happened for its own benefit. For there is a prospect that the second mortgage will vanish as a specter of misery for those who desire to buy or build a home.

By advancing to building and loan associations money on the mortgages they hold, the Home Loan Bank actually comes to the relief of those who are not able as yet to meet the monthly payments.

But that is not the only effect. In addition to saving millions of homes, partly paid for by small householders, there is a secondary purpose to the legislation. That is to enable people to buy homes already built or to build more.

It has been customary for the Real Estate Boards of the larger cities to erect model houses at their annual shows. One of the lessons which should have been impressed on the minds of those who have seen them is the number of lines of human endeavor which a modern house represents. All told there are over 20 such. Thus the building of new homes represents not only the building trades, but has a far-reaching effect in the mercantile and professional channels.

The modern American house may be but a structure on a lot 35 by 130, and undistinguished by more than a garage and modern plumbing, electrical work and a breakfast nook, to some eyes. But it is a symbol of American standards of living. It is what we call home. As such it is the root of patriotism and the bulwark of the republic.

It is at once the back of all industry, the reason for transportation, and the chief business of mercantile effort is to meet its needs. Relief in that direction is getting down to cases—Cincinnati Enquirer.

BARGAIN SCHOOLS.

As autumn approaches and idle young men and women brood on the brink of their future, they should consider that education will be cheap this year.

A survey conducted at the University of Iowa shows that a college education that used to cost between $500 and $550 a year now can be had for between $200 and $300. University house bills have been cut from $20 to $10 a month. Tuition has been cut from $20 to $10 a month. Tuition has been cut from $20 to $10 a month.

College men making a career even for the present, however, should not be lulled by the prospect of a bargain education. It is not a bargain education that will lead to a career in the old-fashioned way of the past.

Perhaps with education at the bargain counter there would be a corresponding drop in the cost of living. It is a possibility that should be considered.

My Beauty Hint

BY ELEANOR POST

TIME this straight line for eyebrows, as popular last year, seems to be entirely "out" now. Groom your eyebrows along the lines that nature intended them to grow, is my beauty hint.

The eyes and the lips are the most important features of make-up this year. Rouge and powder carefully and be sure that your eyes are properly made up. By that I mean not with the heavy shadow which is attractive only under electric light, but with care and good taste to meet any condition of lighting.

Heights boulevard. Mrs. Hamilton will move in the near future to Springfield and Mrs. Yambert to East Liverpool. German scientists have succeeded in drawing electric currents of 18,000,000 volts from the clouds during thunder storms over a plant they have built to study such phenomena in Swind Mountains.

Ports
STORMS, such as we had last Saturday, sends people into some funny places and strange company, if you ask us. Folks not too busy finding shelter, for themselves last Saturday afternoon would have seen something to grin about had they glanced towards the entrance of Central Junior High school a split second after the storm broke. Flanking one of the pillars was a good-sized female garbed in summer togs while crouched in a corner at the other side of the entrance was a none-too-friendly-looking knight of the road. The storm waned rapidly, the winds blew, the rain fell and the pair watched the elements and eyed one another out of the tails of their eyes. It would have been funny if it hadn't been so serious, but at that it's any old port in a storm.

Just Things
BY EDNA E. DUTTON
County Fair
WINTER brings snow and a blizzard for the coal dealer, spring that annual germ-couling urge, summer a yen for the big outdoors but fall brings that old standby, the Marion County fair. And who, (we mean if they are real fair-lans) can talk themselves out of going? There's the old argument of nothing new, but that's soon worn down. One can always bet on some new little kitten-kats and some wiggle-legged puppies, the washing machines seem to splash higher and harder each year and with this era of quibbling there is bound to be something worth while in the fine arts department. And whether you are a judge or not, there are all the ribbons to tell what's best in which. The average fair fan, in his or her simple way, doesn't know why it's the best and probably will not agree with the judges, but it's all there in blue, red, yellow, white and so on. And what a fine chance to start an argument if all afford. Well, we'll be seeing you on the merry-go-round.

A New Version
WE heard a new version, or perhaps just a little bit more enlightenment on the subject, in regard to that old one about "In spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to love." (Of course if you've heard it you can't stop us but you don't need to read to the end.) This stage of the game, so the story goes, is puppy love, but after marriage it's a dog's life.

Personal Mention
Miss Sarah H. Taylor of Dayton, former music supervisor in the Dayton public schools, returned to Dayton today after a visit with Miss Ella Meers of South Prospect street. Miss Taylor holds a similar position in the Dayton schools.

J. H. Kerr of Chicago was an overnight guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Lewis of South Prospect street.

Mrs. M. H. Gunder and children, Joe and Pauline, of 341 West Center street, and Miss Grace Merriam of 301 Silver street have returned home from Rye Beach, where they spent the summer.

Miss Viola Peacock of 321 Belmont street has returned from Rye Beach where she was the guest for two weeks of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Voughn of Columbus at their summer home. Mr. and Mrs. Voughn's guests also included Misses Jean Curtis and Elaine Curtis of Columbus, Tri Delta sorority sisters of Miss Peacock.

County Fair
WINTER brings snow and a blizzard for the coal dealer, spring that annual germ-couling urge, summer a yen for the big outdoors but fall brings that old standby, the Marion County fair. And who, (we mean if they are real fair-lans) can talk themselves out of going? There's the old argument of nothing new, but that's soon worn down. One can always bet on some new little kitten-kats and some wiggle-legged puppies, the washing machines seem to splash higher and harder each year and with this era of quibbling there is bound to be something worth while in the fine arts department. And whether you are a judge or not, there are all the ribbons to tell what's best in which. The average fair fan, in his or her simple way, doesn't know why it's the best and probably will not agree with the judges, but it's all there in blue, red, yellow, white and so on. And what a fine chance to start an argument if all afford. Well, we'll be seeing you on the merry-go-round.

A New Version
WE heard a new version, or perhaps just a little bit more enlightenment on the subject, in regard to that old one about "In spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to love." (Of course if you've heard it you can't stop us but you don't need to read to the end.) This stage of the game, so the story goes, is puppy love, but after marriage it's a dog's life.

Ports
STORMS, such as we had last Saturday, sends people into some funny places and strange company, if you ask us. Folks not too busy finding shelter, for themselves last Saturday afternoon would have seen something to grin about had they glanced towards the entrance of Central Junior High school a split second after the storm broke. Flanking one of the pillars was a good-sized female garbed in summer togs while crouched in a corner at the other side of the entrance was a none-too-friendly-looking knight of the road. The storm waned rapidly, the winds blew, the rain fell and the pair watched the elements and eyed one another out of the tails of their eyes. It would have been funny if it hadn't been so serious, but at that it's any old port in a storm.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN
A New World
NAN was waiting for the first rain. The furniture dated from the forties—square solid mahogany wardrobe, chest of drawers and mirror. The dressing-table had a crimson petticoat with transparent muslin over it, and a looking-glass with a great many little drawers. There was a very fat pincushion with a tulle.

It was, Nan thought with a little alarm, very completely a grandparent's room, and very certainly not hers. She felt an abashed sense of being an intruder as she skirted the dressing-table to reach the large window.

One's first instinct in a strange room is to see what lies beyond it. Nan looked out and saw a wet green lawn. The lilac bushes that edged it bent in the wind. Overhead the heavy clouds drove across the sky. She could not see the sea, but she thought she could hear it. The room stood at the corner of the house. Perhaps the other window looked on the sea. But when she reached it, though the sound was louder, the sea was still hidden.

The view from this side of the house showed a paved terrace, then falling ground—at first grass with some flower beds, then shrubs irregularly planted, and finally a steep fall toward what looked like a ravine. To the left a kind of bluff or knoll covered with trees hid the sea. Nan felt sure that it hid the sea. She could hear the sound of waves against the cliffs. She felt a great desire to go out into the rain and wind. Instead she washed her hands, looked at herself in the large mirror, and went down to tea.

There was to be tea in the library. She came into the hall and tried three doors before she found the right one—the dining room, full of enormous mahogany furniture; the drawing-room, long unadorned and breathing faint ghostly camphor, lavender, and the smell of old cedar chests; the third room, a small comfortable place with books, shabby old chairs, and a writing-table.

She found the library next to it, a pleasant room looking to the ravine, and Jervis sitting in the window with the largest dog she had ever seen standing gravely beside him. He had a head like a lion, and she was lion-cololed. He turned deep amber eyes on Nan and came padding to meet her. She put out a hand. He slid his head under it and sniffed her skirt.

"You're not afraid of dogs," said Jervis.

Nan threw him an indignant look.

"No. What's his name?"

"Brian. Tell him to shake hands with you."

Nan looked down into the amber eyes.

"Brian, shake hands," she said, and was aware of Jervis watching her quizzically.

She took her hand from Brian's head as she spoke and held it out. Immediately the huge mound opened; her hand was taken gently but firmly and shaken from side to side. She felt the pressure of the great teeth, but it was a pressure which would not have broken an egg-shell. Then her hand was dropped and the velvet-soff muzzle moved across it with a caressing touch.

Jervis came over to them.

"You are free of Brian's affections," he said gravely. "He only shakes hands with people he likes very much."

Just for an instant Nan would have given everything she had in the world to know whether Rosamund was one of the people with whom Brian shook hands. The fact was so irrational and so strong that it brought the blood to her cheeks. She walked to the window. Jervis looked on.

"Is the sea behind that bluff?"

"Yes."

"I thought it was—I thought I could hear it."

"You might today, but as a rule you'd hear the fall. The stream comes down that cliff and takes a magnificent dive just through there." He pointed as he spoke. "The fall is one of our sights. It will be worth seeing tomorrow after this rain."

The door opened, and Monk entered, bearing pontifically a large silver tray upon which, in ordered state, stood a massive and hideous tea-service. A tall pale youth followed with a cake-stand. In a hush, Monk issued orders. The tall youth, looking scared to death, set down the cake-stand with a clatter.

It all looked so safe. Nan thought as she poured the tea. But was it? She saw the face of Lord and in the polished tea-pot—she saw it reflected in the rain-washed windowpane.

To Be Continued.

Daily Talk to Parents

BY ALICE JUDSON FEALE

NOT A CHILD'S HERO.
George Washington undoubtedly was a greater hero to children of our nation were it not for the fact that stories about him state and restate that "he could not tell a lie."

The idea is appalling to many children whose own secret records of lies told to get an ice cream cone, to escape a stale duty, to avert parental wrath, rise up before them. The child too many times has fallen from the pedestal of virtue which seemed necessary to become such a hero as Washington.

With relief the child learns that Lincoln, although history made no point of his inability to tell a lie, did play practical jokes, told funny stories and ran a grocery store that was a failure.

There was a hero to whom a child at once felt near, who was not so utterly perfect as to overwhelm one with feelings of guilt and inferiority at the mere thought of him.

It helps children in their strivings toward an ideal of behavior if those who embody their ideals are not so perfect as to be a reproach to their own shortcomings.

The parents and teachers who have the best results with children are those who quite honestly admit their ignorance and their faults. The children then feel quite rightly that the essential thing is to try honestly to be good and to work wholeheartedly.

If then one is not always good and if one's achievements do not always measure up to one's hopes, it is not a catastrophe.

A single misdeed will never make of one an outcast. One has but to face one's responsibilities and begin again.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, Sept. 15.

SUNDAY'S horoscope is not a very important one although there may be some trivial annoyances or anxiety regarding employment or with superiors. The most important aspect gives augury of social, domestic or affectional friction, sorrow or disappointment. It may possibly relate to an unpropitious love affair.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which there may not be much happiness or satisfaction in employment or in relations with those in positions of power and authority. Also the private relations may give concern or prove disappointing and unhappy. Circumstances and tactful behavior should be observed in love affairs. A child born on this day may be disposed to find dissatisfaction in employment, leaving more to artistic, social and romantic vocations or pursuits.

Notable nativity: J. P. Mohr, former governor of Pennsylvania.

For Monday, Sept. 16.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast points to a sudden change, travel or removal, with unexpected business or personal rearrangement which should bring some gratification although not of major influence on the life. The mental attitude may be grave or studious, possibly superinduced by disappointing correspondence or document.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a sudden change in the affairs, entailing travel, removal, new associates and environment. A disappointing or unsatisfactory letter may conduce to a successful or unhappy frame of mind. A child born on this day may be studious, serious-minded and fond of change, adventure and original research and experiment with the finer forces.

Notable nativity: Richard M. Nixon, governor of California.

Tells of Russia
WHAT is said to be the first book about Russia for children has been written by William C. White under the title of "Made in Russia." It will be published by Alfred A. Knopf Sept. 15.

The book deals with the handicraft work of the Russian villages and of Kazan, Tarkenton and the Caucasus, and tells also of how the revolution, with its tractors and dynamite, is changing life in Russia today. There are chapters on the icons, the painters of Pskov, the lacquerware of Novgorod, the metal workers of Tula, the old costumes of the Ukraine, the leather work of Kazan and the jewelry from the Caucasus, folding Easter eggs, wooden folk toys and so on.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON
Midge, fearful of Dicky's anger, seeks to turn back, but Lee Chow finds she is accompanying him on the Moscow mission.

NETTIE'S warning to her slowly moving spouse was sufficient to stir him into action, but it was also potent to strike terror into his heart, at least, and a second after it was uttered, I knew by Mary's convulsive clasp upon my arm that she, too, was frightened at Nettie's Cassandra prophecy. Suppose Hugh and the rest were so far upon their way that we should not find them in time for Lee Chow to join forces with them!

That something vital to the success of the rescue of Marion and Carolyn depended upon Lee Chow's effecting this juncture with the party ahead, I was sure. But I could not fathom why he had wished me to accompany him once he had mastered the maps Dr. Barnes had provided.

My promise to Dicky thrust its head up from my memory and though I was widely tempted to think it back again, for I wanted nothing so much as to go on up the winding trail, along which we were following Heng-way, I made one last effort to heed my husband's last mandate to me before he started upon his part of this perilous adventure.

Edging close to Lee Chow, I touched him upon the arm.

"Will not Mary and I be a hindrance to you?" I murmured. "We can find our way back if you wish!"

"I am sorry—no," he said with decision. "True, I do not need you for the trail. I can find that. But for another reason, it is necessary that you be with me. Please do not talk. No unnecessary sound should be heard from us."

Silenced, but more considered than ever, I felt back with Mary. One thing was certain. We were not hindering Lee Chow, fleet and tireless he had been, so I knew well from my nerve-to-be-forerunner, I had been in the heart of Heng-way. But either way, or the effects of the poison which had entered his finger from the concealed dart in the hidden envelope of Marion's lock box, had slowed his faculties. I found it easy to keep up with him and Heng-way, who, however, was much quicker of movement than I had judged him, and I knew that Mary, given her head, would have outstripped me all.

We did not need me for the trail, but for another reason. What other reason? Why? I rang the changes on the question until I felt actually dizzy. Then a fantastic answer to my query leaped itself at me, and I felt as I imagined a horse dead in taking the count.

Lee Chow and Heng-way

Whether from Mary's lips in talking over the plans for rescue, or from his own fancy, had he conceived the idea that Hugh wished me to join this expedition? If he had, I knew that nothing to Heaven or earth would move him

Ringside Seat in Story of Barnum

HERE COMES BARNUM. P. H. T. Barnum's own story introduced by Helen Ferris in a new Harcourt Brace & Co. publication. The story is for young people but their elders will find it most interesting.

You meet the great showman himself in this book. You attend the opening of Barnum's American Museum in New York City with the Fozzie Merriam and the model of Niagara Falls with real water pouring over its catwalk. You are in Bridgeport, Conn., when Barnum discovers Tom Thumb, the remarkable dwarf, and in London two years later you see him presented at court before Queen Victoria herself. You have a festive seat at the opening night of the Greatest Show on Earth, when General Tom Thumb, the Chinese giant, the bearded woman, a pair of giraffes broken to harness, 20 trained elephants, the Fiji cannibals and a bewildering array of performers parade before you. Miss Ferris has written an introduction which defines the part which Barnum and his circus played in our history.

Barbour Writes Story for Boys

BOYS will like Ralph Henry Barbour's new book, "Shake a Glance," a preparatory school story of fall and winter sports and of one exciting hockey battle. Tom Garvin was not a particularly good student, neither did he shine in the social world of his school, but naturally he turned to sports for his entertainment. He "found himself" when a friend interested him in hockey and one day played so brilliant a game he found himself a hero.

New Books on List

AMONG the new books listed are "Twin Lights" by Sara Ware Bassett, a story of two New England spinners and their differences; "A Boy's Listening" by J. T. McEvoy, a story whose characters are all radio fans; they eat, drink, quarrel and make love with the radio going full blast; "The Coven-Pool-Aid" by Maurice Dekobra, and translated by Samuel Sloan. The story tells the adventures of a young American millionaire in Paris; "A Woman of Worth" by Marguerite Bruner which tells what happens to an aristocrat New York society woman.
